LIKED NODAWAY FINE

ARKANSAWYERS PUT IN A STRENUOUS DAY SATURDAY

A LIVE-WIRE GOVERNOR

State's Chief Executive Pays Sincere Compliment to Our Hospitality and Resources — Friendships Made

"Charles Hillman Brough—Governor of Arkansas—the first public office he ever tried for. Remodelled his state in a 60-day session of the legislature. Compelled adoption of nearly 100 measures which modernize Arkansas law on business, prisons, education, economic control, etc. A philosopher, an historian, a highbrow who gets there."—Roycroft.

Members of the Arkansas—they declared it should be "Arkan-s-a-w," with the accent on the "saw"—party who spent the day visiting the herds of fine cattle and hogs in Nodaway county agreed that Missouri's reputation as a "show me" state was fully lived up to and that with the exception of the fine dairy cattle in Wisconsin nothing they saw on their trip excelled the pure-bred Shorthorns, Herefords, Angus cattle and Poland-China and Duroc and Chester White hogs they were shown here.

Taking the trip solely in the interest of getting better acquainted with better live stock for breeding purposes for Arkansas, the Arkansawyers were intensely interested in everything that was shown them, and at every farm where a stop was made every member of the party went to the barns and pastures to see and ask questions of the owners as to their methods of breeding and feeding. "One of the best days and one of the most interesting on our trip," was the verdict of every member of the party.

"Pretty extensive program," said Governor Brough, when shown an itinerary of the trip planned for the day, "and it looks good," he added. The trip of eighty miles was made on schedule time and no stop was omitted. Members of the party said that the organization and plans for their entertainment here was the most complete they had found at any of the places on the trip. From the time the start was made at Burlington Junction the local men were plied with questions concerning live stock, crops, farming and farming methods.

Reaching Maryville at 6:30 o'clock a short visit was made at the offices of the Standard Poland-China Record Association, where punch was served by Mrs. Frank Garrett, Mrs. W. O. Garrett and Miss Georgia Condon.

Going to their sleepers to clean up after the trip they were driven to the Hotel Bainum where they were entertained at a satisfying meal, after which Geo. Robb Ellison, president of the Commercial Club, announced a brief welcome address by Chas. D. Bellows, dean of the cattle breeders. Mr. Bellows said it had given both pleasure and profit to show them Nodaway county's resources of live stock and agriculture and to be able to aid them in their quest for information as to breeding and methods.

In response to Mr. Bellows' brief address, Governor Chas. H. Brough, speaking in behalf of the visitors, declared that the visit here had proven a revelation and that the day had been one of inestimable value to both bankers, business men and farmers. The governor paid the people of Maryville and the rounty a sincere compliment when he said the party had not met with greater hospitality and that the results of their trip would be far-reaching, as breeders here would be sure to hear from them when they reached home.

Gov. Brough, a democratic and progressive executive, showed an intense interest in live stock and agriculture and pointed out that through a larger development of the industry his state expected to become a leading factor among the states of the middle west.

The governor, a pupil at Princeton University of President Woodrow Wilson, delighted both the members of his own party and the fifty or more Nodaway county men present with one of the most eloquent addresses ever heard here and in which his sincere appreciation of the courtesies shown and the friendship displayed was most marked. Maryville will long remember the governor of Arkansas as one of the most entertaining and eloquent speakers it has been her pleasure to entertain.

Following the dinner a visit was made to the Farmers Trust Co., where the visitors were shown through the new building, after which they were driven to their cars at the Wabash depot, leaving for their homes in Arkansas at 9.50 o'clock.

A complete record of the trip was recorded in notes taken by members of the state agricultural college and heads of various farming and live stock bureaus and every pure bred prize-winning animal shown was recorded for future reference together with the name of the owner and other information that would prove valuable.

FILES ACTION FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Lora M. Blakemore Charges Her Husband With Refusal to Work and With Many Indignities

Charging her husband with "practices too vile and immoral to name" in her written petition, Mrs. Lora M. Blakemore filed suit for divorce today from her husband, Chas. H. Blakemore. In addition to the charge named Mrs. Blakemore states that her husband has refused to work or to provide a living and refused to feed and care for the cows and horses given him by relatives and has repeatedly brought immoral men to their home leaving her alone with them and accusing her of infidelity. She asks that her maiden name of Lora M. Moss be restored.

The Blakemores were married in August, 1915, and lived together according to the petition, until last March, when the plaintiff states that conditions became intolerable and she was forced to leave.

DR. BONE TO JOIN THE COLORS

Leaves for Kansas City Today—Will Enter Service Some Time Before Sept. 1

Dr. C. A. Bone leaves this afternoon for Kansas City where he will further complete his plans for entering the service. Dr. Bone qualified for a position in the officers reserve corps and was offered a first lieutenancy. He was unable to say whether he would accept it or not, but expects to take up active duty in the army prior to September 1. Mrs. Bone accompanied him to Kansas City.

Dr. Bone sold his business here, having decided that he must take an active part in the conflict and offered his services to the government. He will probably return to Maryville at the close of the war.

THEIR WORK GROWS

TOWNSHIP SUNDAY SCHOOLS SHOW GREATER EFFICIENCY

YESTERDAY'S MEETING

Convention at First M. E. Church Was Largely Attended—New Officers Were Elected for the Year

That Sunday schools of Polk township are broadening their efforts and showing increased efficiency was indicated in reports made by township officers at the township convention held yesterday afternoon at the First M. E. church. Reports made by Mrs. L. E. White, superintendent of elementary work, and R. C. Seal, in charge of intermediate work, showed a considerable gain over a year ago. The Polk township convention yesterday was the last of the township conventions before the county convention this fall, at which over 1,000 delegates are expected.

The convention was opened by a fifteen-minute praise service, led by C. Edwin Wells, following which Mrs. L. E. White in a practical talk pointed out some of the newest ideas being used to interest the children, a feature of which was an explanation by Miss May Howland of the application of conundrums relating to Bible characters and how the children found them out. One in connection with Moses was told by Mary Elizabeth Jones just as it was told in the class.

"The Duty of the Teacher to the Teens" was treated in a practical manner by Miss Laura Hawkins, who pointed out that the teacher who was unable to become interested in teen age folk would be a failure. Effort, application, constant attendance at classes and plans for social events were pointed out to be a part of a teen age teacher's obligation.

W. E. Goforth told of the benefit to both Sunday school and church of the home department, whose workers were able to reach entire families in many cases by getting in personal touch with those who are physically unable to attend services and by taking the message to them in their homes.

G. B. Roseberry, president of the county association, spoke briefly about the coming county convention and urged that every school in the township be represented.

Miss Eva Davis, secretary of the county association, in a talk on the necessity for standardizing the Sunday school, showed that the schools in the township are rapidly acquiring the points that bring them towards the 100 per cent efficiency mark.

A feature of the program was the singing of little Miss Pearl Deneen of Bedison, whose clear voice and splendid rendition won admiration. County President Roseberry announced that a request would be made for her to sing at the county convention. The little lady was accompanied on the piano by her sister, Miss Hester Deneen.

At the business session the following officers were elected: President, R. C. Seal; vice president, Albert Dowden of Myrtle Tree; secretary, Miss Vada Foland; treasurer, Ed W. Gray; elementary superintendent, Mrs. L. E. White; intermediate superintendent, Miss Laura Hawkins; adult superintendent, Bert Cooper; administration superintendent, I. C. Tebow.

Arthur M. Crooke, president of the Polk township association during the last year, presided at the meeting, which was attended by teachers and pupils representing most of the nine Sunday schools in the township.

ON SUGAR RATIONS

AFTER JULY 1 CONSUMPTION IS FIXED AT 3 LBS. PER MONTH

THE SUPPLY IS SHORT

Food Administration Also Orders Reduction of Fifty Per Cent On All Less Essential Products

Washington, June 24. — Drastic restrictions on sugar consumption were announced by the Food Administration Saturday night. They include: Reduction of home consumption to three pounds a person a month. Reduction of less essential manufactured products, including sweet drinks, to 50 per cent of their normal sugar requirements. Cutting of ice cream manufacturers to 75 per cent of their normal amount of sugar.

Food Administration officials are working on details of a ration card by which they will enforce the three pound a month rule.

Sugar Supply Is Short.

This rationing scheme follows a serious reduction in the available sugar supply for the United States and the Allies. Shipping shortage, destruction of more than two hundred French sugar factories and losses of thousands of acres of French and Italian beet sugar lands, have combined to create a serious scarcity of sugar, according to the Food Administration. The strain of America to provide sugar for the Allies is increasing. Only strict conservation will enable food officials to tide over the crisis without being forced to more drastic steps and increased prices.

The new rationing regulations will be effective July 1. Every manufacturer will be required to certify his sugar needs to the Food Administration before he can obtain sugar.

Only the following products will get their full amount of sugar under the new rule:

Canned fruits, canned vegetables, explosives, meats, catsup, chili sauce, drugs for medicinal purposes, apple butter, packers of preserved fruits, mince meats, glycerin, insecticides, capsules and ant poison.

Those to be Affected.

Under the less essential class, which will get only half its sugar requirements, instead of 80 per cent, as now, Hoover has included: Barrooms, brewers, California fruit cider, cough drops, dental preparations, dessert powders, druggists who buy sugar for reducing concentrated syrups, honey manufacturers, hotel bars, gelatin, ginger ale, glue, grape juice, ice cream cones, ice cream powder, jelly powder, marshmallows, malted milk, maple sugar compounds, molasses and syrups, patent medicines, pickles, rollers for printing presses, preserving salmon eggs for sale to fishermen, table syrup, vinegar and whisky.

In the case of grape juice, the Food Administration announced it possibly would allow additional sugar, if necessary, to prevent fermentation of the grape crop, but no increased sugar would be allowed merely to produce a sweeter drink.

Soda fountains are hit hard by the new regulations. They are cut to fifty per cent. Preserved fruits for soda fountains must adhere to this limit, although fruits preserved for normal domestic use may have the full amount of sugar. Ice cream formerly has been allowed unlimited use of sugar, but after July only 75 per cent will be allowed and where ice cream is manufactured on the premises of any dispenser it will be under the 50 per cent limitation.

DOING VITAL WORK

REV. MILLER TELLS OF ACTIVITIES OF RED TRIANGLE

THE BARRIERS DROPPED

Creeds and Isms Have No Place, the Church Finding Its Great Opportunity in Y. M. C. A. Medium

"I don't know what the army would do without the Red Triangle, for with the Red Cross it is the most vital thing in the whole army system," said Rev. C. Emerson Miller of the First Christian church, just returned from a month's stay at Camp Doniphan where he was assigned for duty in connection with the work of the church.

Rev. Miller, in a talk last night on the Red Triangle and its work, explained that individual denominations were not permitted to make their appeals to the soldiers and that the church as a whole had found the medium in the Red Triangle, all the churches working through it in an effort to improve the morale of the men and to supply their needs along educational, religious and physical development lines. "The Red Cross ministers to the physical suffering of the men when they are wounded or sick and in distress," he said, "but the Red Triangle takes them into its sheltering care as soon as they reach camp and helps them, and they are doing a more vital work in France than they are over here, for the need is greater there."

The Y. M. C. A. secretaries, he said, are Christian men who are interested in their fellow men and with an intense desire to befriend them and help them over the hard places. Men within the draft age are not being taken as secretaries now, the soldiers having little use for a secretary who apparently should be doing his bit along with the other boys in the service.

Rev. Miller took occasion to deplore the need for militarism and declared that the army plan would build up lines of caste that it would take the United States fifty years to obliterate, the snobbishness of many of the officers being responsible for making martinets of the men below their rank, the non-coms.

"Denominational barriers are being let down," said Rev. Miller, "and all denominations are making one common cause of trying to bring the soldiers to Christ. I met men of many different denominations there and the Jewish rabbi, the Lutheran, the Christian Scientists were working side by side. The Christian Scientist fellow, I think, must have an awful hard job for with an imaginary war and imaginary bullets and imaginary pain and suffering I confess I don't know how he goes about his work.

"With the church having found its greatest opportunity through the medium of the Red Triangle it will have to measure up to a higher standard after the war is over," he declared, "or the men in the army and navy will feel it is of secondary importance."

Rev. Miller told some interesting experiences of his stay at the Oklahoma cantonment and gave in detail the work that the Red Triangle is doing.

"Two signs," he said, "will after the war remain forever with America as lasting emblems of service and sacrifice—the Red Cross and the Red Triangle—the latter representing, if you will, the Trinity."

Rev. Miller said that the work of the Red Triangle was as vital as the work of the Red Cross, but through an indifferent knowledge of what it sought to accomplish had not been given the liberal support that was its due. He urged that a larger share of money and attention be given it by the people of this community in future war activities.

PURSUING THE ROUTED AUSTRIANS

ITALIANS DRIVE ENEMY INTO THE FLOODED PIAVE INFLICTING TERRIBLE LOSSES

DUAL MONARCHY FACES DESPERATE SITUATION

Two Hundred Thousand Have Been Lost In Killed and Wounded—Von Ludendorf Hurries to Vienna On Mission from Kaiser

Reports coming today emphasized the magnitude of the victory gained by the Italians on the Piave and the extent of the rout inflicted upon the Austro-Hungarian armies. In addition to heavy losses by the Italian's fire and the thousands of men lost in prisoners and wounded, great numbers have been drowned by being driven into the flooded Piave and the stream is full of floating corpses.

Pressed relentlessly by the Italians the Austrians fled as best they could to the eastern bank of the river. Meantime their pursuers, with their engineers, threw bridges across the river and the cavalry kept up the pursuit of the fleeing armies. The retreat was carried out over a forty-mile front between Montello and the Adriatic and upon a twenty-five mile stretch lying from Montello on the east to Zenoson Loop. The battle lines stand today as they were before the Austrians started their drive.

The Austrian losses have been tremendous, being estimated as high as 200,000 in killed, wounded and missing. The Austrian war office, realizing that defeat was inevitable on the Piave began to prepare the Austrian people for the gloomy intelligence on last Saturday.

Italian troops have been placed in a part of the fighting against the Germans on the western front in France. Also the German troops attacked the Italian positions in Mount Bleveny but were driven off after violent fighting leaving many dead and prisoners behind.

There was fighting of a minor nature on the Montdidier and Oise river fronts and also on the Flanders plains. However, the Germans have been unable to organize and deliver fresh blows of magnitude on any of the four battle fields of France.

London, June 24.—General Von Ludendorf, chief of staff to General Hindenburg, and known as the "brains of the German army," is speeding to Vienna on a special mission from the kaiser, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today. There is grave anxiety over the Austrian situation.

Paris, June 24.—The disastrous defeat inflicted on the Austrians by the Italians will probably hasten a new offensive on the western front, said Marcel Hutin, the famous French war critic.

CAPTURED ARMY DESERTER.

Cassville, Mo., June 24.—Claude Hilton, a deserter from the national army, who has held the authorities at bay for months, was captured by Captain Garrison of Camp Funston in a spectacular dash into the heart of the Ozarks in the mountain feud country.

Attention Knitters—In the official Red Cross bulletin of February 11 are the following orders which have not been revoked and are therefore still in force: "Do not make trench caps. The army is issuing to every man who goes to the front line trenches a special kind of trench cap which is the only kind they are allowed to wear. This fits under the steel helmet and is attached to it by some steel rings and fastenings, the idea being to remove it with one movement when necessity arrives, when the metal helmet also comes off."

The following shipment was made to divisional headquarters on June 21: 480 triangular bandages, 720 many-tailed bandages, 12,000 4x4 wipes, 70 sweaters, 10 helmets, 13 pairs wristlets, 55 pairs socks and 36 layettes.

The thirty-six layettes sent to divisional headquarters last week were made by various auxiliaries in the various towns and represent an average outlay of $8.50, a total of $306.

The Red Cross is the awakened spirit of America.

The largest part of the work of the bureau of supplies which consists of examining, repacking and shipping of all the articles the chapters send to headquarters, is done by volunteer workers. These are assembled at the St. Louis warehouse, there opened, examined and properly sorted and shipped to eastern ports for use abroad, or to cantonments in the United States. The St. Louis warehouse contains 50,000 square feet of floor space which is far larger than the ordinary business house and the services of 130 persons is required. Through the combination of the volunteer workers of the chapters and the American Red Cross bureau of supplies the Red Cross is now the largest garment and bandage supply factory in the world.

To the Women of America.

An authoritative statement from official Washington again impresses upon the women of America the fact that "they have never been called upon before to bear so great a burden as the coming months will impose upon their courage and their constancy."

It is interesting to note that though women's part in all the war activities is emphasized, first place is given to the matter of food production and food conservation and women's share in it. The message reads in part "The women of America must see to it that the nation's producing power is not enfeebled by the draft made upon it to strengthen the fighting power.

"They must produce food by working gardens, by raising chickens, by doing farm service where they can or by helping and encouraging those who do it. They must aid in the kitchen conserving food by wise economics canning, drying, preserving, pickling and preparing food in accordance with the food administration's program They must purchase where they see the food administration's emblem watch their local dealers, buy local produce in preference to shipped goods and resist the temptation to hoard.

America is today rationing the world. Without our food supplies the Allies could not fight for us. They are suffering privations. The food that we save for them is not a saving of money. It is a saving of life. It is worth more than its weight in gold."

MARYVILLE DISTRICT FARM NEWS NOTES

J. M. Huston, Agent.

Wheat Harvest Is On.

The heaviest blow the farmers of this district can strike the enemy is through a wheat crop, and that blow is being struck this week by all of the Maryville district. The first fields were cut last week and the great majority are now going into the shock.

The acreage is large, the prospect is good and everyone is doing his best to save all the crop. We have been fortunate this year in that there has been but little Hessian fly damage, practically no chinch bug damage and no stem rust whatever. The growth is heavy, but practically none has fallen down. There is some smut in wheat, but not a great deal. Stem rust is entirely absent, although there is a little leaf rust, which is quite harmless. Many fields also have have some scab in them, shown by heads partially or entirely blighted. There is also some work of the joint worm or straw borer to be found, but all the pests and diseases put together will not cut the yield of the district on the average more than one and a half per cent.

There will be a large demand for labor to handle this crop, but the situation is being handled in fine shape, thanks to the great community spirit that pervades in this time of great need. The farmers are exchanging help one with the other, and this, together with the way in which crops are ripening for harvest makes it possible for the farmer to handle his crops without the assistance of much outside labor.

Calls are coming every day for two or three extra hands on farms where the rush of work exceeds the labor and these calls are being promptly supplied. All of the towns are ready and willing to go out to the farmer and give him all the time that is necessary in getting the hay in the stack and the wheat in the shock. Every one is united in a common cause. Those wishing hands for harvest work should get in touch with the labor director in their nearest town and help will be forthcoming.

Poultry Program Inaugurated In Nodaway County.

(This article was prepared by Ralph L. Mason, extension poultry husbandman, U. S. department of agriculture).

Through the efforts of J. M. Huston, district demonstration agent, and Ralph L. Mason, extension poultry husbandman of the U. S. department of agriculture, Nodaway county has inaugurated the government campaign for more and better poultry.

With the assistance of a number of local leaders, who have been appointed as follows—H. England, Maryville, Mo.; William Gex, Graham; Mrs. A. A. Wiley, Maryville; Mrs. C. R. Green, Ravenwood; Mrs. Orville Gray, Pickering; Ed Crane, Barnard; Henry Moore, Graham; Tom Hughes, Graham—it is expected to increase poultry production in Nodaway county to meet the war needs of the nation and at the same time make the farm flocks of poultry more profitable.

Not only is this campaign being carried on in Nodaway county, but in every county in Missouri and in every state in the United States. Today is not the time of individual effort, but it is a time for every one to get into the harness and help. Through the above named local dealers demonstrations and meetings will be held.

At these demonstrations the following points in poultry work will be taken up: Early hatching, confining the mother hen to a brood coop, producing infertile eggs, preserving eggs in water glass, culling out the non-layers, selling off the surplus cockerels, winter feeding and housing, and other important work. The demonstration will be given before the local leaders in order that they may take the work back to their communities and tell others, in this way spreading the work of the campaign and reaching as large a number of people as possible.

Mr. Huston will act as county leader and will be glad to assist any committee desiring the work or give information necessary relative to the appointments of local leaders in other townships or communities.

For further information write either J. M. Huston of Maryville or Ralph L. Mason, Poultry Department, Columbia, Mo.

In Atchison county Mrs. Irene F. Blood of Tarkio, who is home demonstration agent for that county, will act as county leader in this campaign. The local leaders appointed this time are Mrs. Tom Clark, Westboro, and Mrs. Emma Walkup, Fairfax.

TO-DAY

Editorial Notes by Arthur Brisbane

Mr. Fairbanks of Indiana leaves fifty thousand dollars to be held in trust for five hundred years—the income to be divided once in fifty years and spent for "social welfare work."

Mr. Fairbanks liked to show the log cabin in which he was born and tell of his surprise when he found himself vice president of the United States.

He would be more surprised if he could know what will happen in five hundred years.

In five hundred years the people of the earth having been able to read and write for five and a half centuries, having learned in the lifetime of Woodrow Wilson to tax wealth instead of poverty, having learned to use the earth's resources for the benefit of the many, will be extremely different from what they are today.

—o—

If Mr. Fairbanks could come back in five hundred years to inquire about his fifty thousand dollars he would be told that wishes of dead men no longer control the living or the money that the dead once had.

With nothing very pressing to do this evening you might find it good mental exercise to sit down and try to imagine the earth's civilization five hundred years from now.

—o—

No war, of course.

No actual poverty, probably.

No gigantic wealth. Really educated men of the future will not want a hundred millions. The educated man of today does not have a hundred wives — he leaves such troublesome accumulation to savages.

No anxiety for old age five hundred years from now. Emulation will replace competition. Men of power will think more of their weaker brothers, less of themselves.

—o—

No killing of hundreds of thousands of children annually by neglect, poisonous food or too little food five hundred years from now.

No management of the earth and its wealth on the theory that the human race was created to provide too much for a few at the price of life-long worry for the crowd.

—o—

No divorce or quarrels between men and women. Men will become naturally monogamous through woman's education. He will be worthy to associate with the male wild goose who sits and mourns and thinks of no other when its mate disappears.

—o—

Universal education began only yesterday. In five hundred years it should drive out Injustice and her three daughters—Poverty, Crime and Drunkenness.

—o—

The end of crime will mean economy and added wealth beyond measure. No thieves, no crime, no policemen, no collectors of money, no courts, no judges. These things may not come in five hundred years, but they will come.

—o—

If you believe in the elementary improvements suggested here "never will be because they never have been" remember that not long ago a pious governor of Virginia hoped and believed there never would be a public school in that state. Only a few thousand years back every human being was a cannibal unless too weak to kill the man he wanted to eat.

Passion for accumulation is the moving passion now. It will be replaced by real ambition, passion for public approval. What will be the results?

You see men gladly giving their lives for their country. Can't you imagine the possibility of more highly dollars? I hope you spend some of it necessary surplus for their country?

—o—

Map out the world a few hundred years hence, as you chose, you could not exaggerate the improvements.

All traveling through the air, all living on mountain tops, flying down to the valleys for work, all heavy labor done by the power of water falls or of the sun itself.

Force, heat, light, free as air, the government supplying them, compelling the people to use them wisely. Socialism? No; common sense.

A day's labor, three hours, perhaps less, for the hard-working class, and, as usual, sixteen hours for those that have mental strength and use their minds.

—o—

Much surprise you would see on the white face of a tall ghost named Fairbanks if it should come back five hundred years hence and say, "What are you doing with my fifty thousand dollars? I hope you spend some if it to give night's lodgings to homeless, friendless working girls."

—o—

If you want to give your imagination real exercise, try to imagine what life would be on this planet five hundred thousand years or five million years from now.

We can no more imagine what conditions will be than the cave man could have imagined, as he crawled on his belly to attack and eat a neighbor, what fighting would be like in 1918.

"It hath not been shown what we shall be," indeed, "and you may lay that."

SELLS AND BUYS AT SAME TIME.

R. I. Bilby of Nodaway County Keeps Farm Well Stocked in This Way.

Selling and buying cattle at the same time, R. I. Bilby of Nodaway county, Mo., one of the most extensive land owners in the northwestern part of the state, manages to keep on hand about the same number of cattle. Mr. Bilby is making a large purchase of cattle of the stocker class.

"Northwestern Missouri never looked better," Mr. Bilby said today. "We were a little late in getting rain in the spring but we need no rain now, so far as crops are concerned. Wheat the best in many years is ready to harvest, while our corn never looked so well at this date, while the acreage is very large. At present I am marketing my short-fed cattle and stocking up on lighter weight steers to graze." — Drover's Telegram (Kansas City).

Threshing Prices In Oklahoma.

(From the Bartlesville Examiner)

Eleven cents per bushel for wheat and four cents for oats has been decided upon by the county council of defense and threshermen in a recent conference held in this city. Any higher rate charged will be considered an unpatriotic act. The prices named above were the only prices considered and apply where the farmers provide all the help except that necessary to operate the threshing machine. Coal or gasoline for fuel, it is understood, will be furnished by the parties owning the grain as well as board for the threshers.

Miss Louise Koeppel of Chicago, who has been visiting for the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eldon Irvin, left Sunday morning for Nebraska City, Nebr., to visit her parents.

Simple Remedies That Will Rid the Living Rooms and Offices of All Cockroaches

The nuisance of roaches in offices and living rooms of houses can be reduced, if not removed entirely, by the elimination of all attractive substances, according to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Roaches will not frequent rooms unless they find some available food material, and if such materials can be kept from living rooms and offices or scrupulous care exercised to see that no such material is placed in drawers where it can leave an attractive odor or fragments of food, the roach nuisance can be largely restricted to places where food necessarily must be kept. In such places the storage of food material in insect-proof containers or ice boxes, together with thorough-going cleanliness, will go a long way toward preventing serious annoyance.

Roaches as household pests may be controlled by the use of various poisons, repellents, and fumigants, and by trapping. The more efficient of these remedies are powders, particularly sodium fluorid, a liberal dusting of which about the infested premises furnishes an efficient means for the elimination of these pests. Also one part powdered borax and three parts finely pulverized chocolate sprinkled freely about infested premises.

Cockroaches are the commonest and most offensive of the house pests. Four kinds are often found in houses, offices, etc. These are the American roach, a native insect; the European or Oriental roach, known in England as the black beetle; the Australian roach; and the little German roach, commonly known in this country as the Croton bug.

Germany Has Pledged to Let Both Military and Civilian Prisoners Have Home Help

Through the Spanish ambassador at Berlin arrangements have been made whereby American prisoners in Germany, both civilian and military, will be allowed to receive money from home. They will perhaps not receive actual cash, but will probably be given credit on prison exchanges.

A. (1) Sixty marks (about $15 at normal exchange rates, but probably considerably less now) may be spent weekly by officers and others of similar rank; (2) 50 marks weekly (about $12) by noncommissioned officers and privates.

B. Civilian prisoners—(1) Sixty marks weekly "for men of better social positions;" (2) 50 marks weekly for others.

The note of the Spanish ambassador says: "With a view to obtaining particular articles the prisoners are allowed at any time to draw on their credit."

All money sent interned civilians or prisoners should be remitted through the Bureau of Prisoners' Relief, American Red Cross, Washington, D. C. Remittances should be checks, drafts or postal money orders, made payable to the American Red Cross. That organization will do its best to get the remittances through but cannot guarantee delivery. Thus far it has had pretty good success, and such American prisoners as have already or may hereafter become German prisoners will most certainly need all the help they can get to make their lives bearable.

MARCH OF THE DEFENDERS

Oh, knights of hope and Spring-tide marching, marching,
When shall you wear the flowers again, and not the blood-stained thorn?
Oh, young and dear, who come to lay the splendor of your life away,
We know not what immortal bloom from your brave dust is born!

For hark! a sound of marching — marching, marching—
We hear the thunder of the steps of Michaels' host in Heaven;
The Force which struck the fiery Star that kindled to a lurid bar,
And fell as a red meteor when the morning clouds were riven.

And they shall come—the gallant dead —to meet us, marching—
The souls that made of earth's dark wars a golden memory.
The Maid of France shall ride again, grave captains at her side again,
And Nelson's spirit on the wave shall call to victory.

Oh, hosts of light, that strive and die, —oh, great ranks, marching,
Still hold aloft the deathless rose, your hope of years to be!
Where ruin marked the steps of wrong, again the Spring shall break in song,
And valiant lilies, white and red, shall flower from sea to sea.

—Marion Couthouy Smith of the Vigilantes.

SENATOR WILFLEY OPENS CAMPAIGN

SPEECHES AT MEXICO AND CENTRALIA BREATHE SPIRIT OF PATRIOTISM.

PROUD OF MISSOURI'S PART

Makes No Pledges Except the Promise to Assist the Government Successfully Settle the Battle for Liberty.

Mexico, Mo., June 15.—Senator X. P. Wilfley today opened his campaign for the Senate before a great crowd of friends in this his home county. In an eloquent address he reaffirmed his complete support of President Wilson and paid tribute to distinguished sons of Missouri who have served and are still serving the state and the nation. He made special reference to his lamented predecessor, William Joel Stone.

Senator Wilfley was introduced by Judge Alex Carter of Audrain County, a former supporter of Gov. Folk. Following his speech in Mexico Senator Wilfley was taken in an automobile to Centralia, where he delivered another address at 5:30 p. m. and then caught a train an hour later to return to his duties at Washington.

The meeting adopted the following resolution:

"We, the Democrats of Audrain County, most earnestly and respectfully appeal to the voters in the Democratic primary to support for the nomination for United States Senate Senator Xenophen P. Wilfley, known familiarly in this county and section as Xen Wilfley.

"We urge the support of Senator Wilfley not only because he was born and reared in one of Audrain County's most humble but most worthy homes, but also because from his childhood up he has lived such a life that any county would be proud to claim him as her own. As a country boy, as a student in our Missouri schools, a teacher, a Democrat and as a citizen, his life has been without spot or blemish and distinguished by unfailing fidelity to every trust and marked ability in the discharge of every duty.

"We are proud of the record he has already made in the United States Senate and of his hearty support of President Wilson, and, knowing him as we do, we have full faith that his entire service in that exalted position will be marked with the same loyalty, patriotism, courage and ability.

"Senator Wilfley is the kind of man Missouri should have on guard in these times that try men's souls. He is an honest, highly capable, courageous, 100-per-cent American. We urge all Missourians who believe in that sort of Americanism and in efficient and loyal public service to help us retain this native son of Missouri in the country's service and in the position for which in character and ability he is most eminently qualified."

Senator Wilfley spoke in part as follows:

"I am here today to open my campaign for the reason that, while the city of St. Louis is my place of residence, Audrain County to me in a peculiar sense means home. In this county my father and mother established the residence that was the home of my childhood. There I was born. To a country school on the northern border of this county I went as a barefoot boy to learn the earliest and most fundamental lessons of life's education. From my parents, my home and the good people of this country I received the inspiration which has enabled me, through much of struggle and hardship, to attain whatever measure of success and achievement has come to me. I have known the people of many communities since those boyhood days. From the country school of this county I went in pursuit of further education to a preparatory school in Moniteau County, and later graduated from Central College, in Howard County. To repay the money which I borrowed to get an education, I taught school in Sedalia. In St. Louis I prepared in Washington University for the practice of the profession in which for 20 years I have been engaged in the metropolis of the state. But I am proud still to think of Audrain County as my home. I am proud to be able to say to you today, with the utmost sincerity, that there are no better people, that there is no better citizenship in the state of Missouri or in any state in the nation than the people and citizenship of Audrain County. The most pleasant mission that ever brought me to this county was when I came here about 10 years ago and took for my wife one of the dearest, best women who ever lived in your midst. I am proud of the fact that I was born and raised and have always lived in the state of Missouri. I am glad that to no other state do I owe allegiance on account of either birth or residence. I am glad that I received my education in the schools of this state. My pride in the state, in its people and in its institutions increases as I grow older and know better the splendid people of this splendid commonwealth.

"I should like to continue to talk to you of my feeling for this community and for the state of Missouri and of the ties that must bind every heart of proper sentiment to the home of his childhood, but I must turn from considerations of the past to the problems of the present and future with which we are all concerned. It is my duty and privilege to speak to you today as the representative of the state of Missouri in the United States Senate, and as a candidate before the people of the state for nomination and election to that high and responsible office. You are less concerned with matters of sentiment at this time than with the important matter of choosing your representative in the national Congress. A little less than two months ago I was appointed by the Governor of the state of Missouri to fill the vacancy in the United States Senate caused by the death of the late lamented William J. Stone. As soon as I was appointed your Senator I went to Washington and entered upon the duties of this great and responsible office, which has been so ably filled by eminent Missourians. This generation remembers well the distinguished service rendered this state and the nation in the United States Senate by George G. Vest and Francis M. Cockrell. My distinguished predecessor, William J. Stone, served the people of Missouri in various capacities for a period covering more than 30 years. For six years he was a member of the lower house of Congress; for four years he was Governor of the state; and for 15 years he was United States Senator. He was loyal to his friends, devoted to his party, and combined with distinguished ability such outstanding courage as to give him a position of commanding leadership in the councils of his party and in the Senate of the United States. My colleague, Senator James A. Reed, is recognized today as one of the ablest men on the floor of the United States Senate. I could not have entered upon the duties of this office without being profoundly impressed with responsibility of taking a place which had been held by men of such distinguished ability. But, putting aside all thoughts except the determination to serve the state and the nation to the full measure of my best ability, I entered upon my official duties, and in presenting myself to the people of Missouri for election to the office which I now hold by appointment I, at the same time, render account of service performed and give promise of my course in the future if I am chosen as your representative.

"I went to Washington with the conviction that the people of the state, with the people of the entire nation, today repose in Woodrow Wilson the full measure of confidence to which the President of the United States is entitled. I called upon the President and discussed with him the great problems of the hour. I found him deeply concerned and gravely in earnest in his efforts to meet the responsibility of his great task as Chief Executive of the nation, and as commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States.

"I undertook to speak to him for the people of Missouri; to assure him that the people of this commonwealth were whole-hearted in their confidence in him and were ready and willing to bring to him the full measure of their utmost co-operation and support in behalf of this great cause upon which the nation is embarked. I gave him assurance of my full co-operation and support, and on the occasion of every opportunity in the Senate I have made good that assurance.

"On the battlefield of France is now being fought the greatest battle in the history of the human race. More than 700,000 Americans are there, and in a short time we shall have a million men on the battlefield and another million to follow. They are engaged in a conflict which involves all the strength, courage and heroism of American manhood. We are proud of that army and we have perfect confidence that it will bring Prussian militarism to its knees. At the head of that gallant army is a brave son of Missouri, Gen. John J. Pershing, who was born in that state and is now bringing honor to it by his ability and genius on the battlefield.

"A few days ago, in Washington, I called on Rear Admiral Leigh C. Palmer of the United States Navy, who was born in Missouri, and who has charge of the personnel of the navy, which has increased from 56,000 just before the war to 356,000 today, with a corresponding increase of ships from 106 to over 1,700.

Another distinguished son of Missouri who is rendering important service in the war is Maj. Gen. Enoch H. Crowder, who as Provost Marshal-General, is in charge of the execution of the selective service act under which 10,000,000 men were registered for army service, and from which registration our soldiers are now being selected.

"No man who lives in this state can fail to have special pride in the distinguished men who were born here and who are now performing conspicuous service in this great conflict. It is a great thing to be an American citizen and live under the benign influence of American liberty and freedom. It is a great honor to participate in high official positions in these great war activities. But the greatest privilege that can be enjoyed by any man in this country today is to be an American soldier, and to fight and, if need be, die for that government that has brought the greatest blessing to mankind ever enjoyed by any nation on the face of the earth. The American soldier occupies the most conspicuous and important position in the world today. The eyes of the civilized nations are looking to him to lead the way to victory and peace. He is fighting that you may live and that your children and your children's children may enjoy the blessings of liberty and freedom. So long as this awful war continues I believe it my duty as your representative to make it the chief concern of my official service until we have finished the work and there is decisive victory. The issues involved are so great and the consequences so momentous that theappe al comes to every individual in America to do his part to contribute to this great cause.

"When we are engaged in the prosecution of such a cause, with such a goal before us, and with such sacrifice involved, on what altar can the servant of the people in government position lay his ability except the altar of full and complete service to the speedy and complete accomplishment of our great purpose. I should deem myself as your servant a traitor to the greatest cause that has ever engaged the attention of mankind if I, through indulgence of personal opinion on unessential matters, interfered in the slightest respect with the most vigorous prosecution of our great undertaking. In the prosecution of that undertaking the Congress of the United States has, in accordance with its constitutional authority, conferred upon the president of the United States the full power to direct and the full responsibility for the conduct of our military activities. I believe, yea, I know that our great President brings to his task as sincere purpose and as profound consecration as human being ever brought to task before him.

"With supreme confidence in the President of the United States, I have no platform to offer, no pledge to give, except the pledge to support to the utmost of my ability the executive branch of the government in the performance of the stupendous task of winning victory for the peace and freedom of mankind."
